Abstract	Chinese researchers should make significant contribution to the global health care initiatives. International conference should be an effective platform for knowledge exchange between researchers in China and those in the international society, and for capacity building of young researchers. Following the announcement of the 3rd Global Symposium on Health Systems due on 30 Sept – 3 Oct 2014, the proposed project will technically and financially support Chinese researchers, in particular young researchers, to attend the conference with presentation up to international standards. A consultation panel will be used to select abstract, to comment on presentation for individual study, and to suggest possible symposiums to make better impacts. The travel logistics will be arranged. A special issue of Newsletter which contains a detailed summary of each awarded and presented study to the event will be produced and disseminated widely within China and possibly abroad. The current network among medical universities in China for health system and policy study will be further strengthened.
